

Daylight saving the answer

WITH the recent request from Eskom for all South Africans to save 10 percent electricity or face load shedding, I request that the national government immediately consider introducing daylight saving at a national level.

We do not need the sun at 4 or 5am but it would be advantageous for the sun to still be up at 8 or 9pm.

This would not only save an enormous amount of electrical power on the grid, but would also translate into big savings on the average consumer's utility bill.
